To the Data Protection Commission (DPC), Ireland

I am formally writing to demand immediate enforcement action regarding the systematic and intentional violation of GDPR Article 17 (Right to Erasure) by Google Ireland Limited/Google LLC.

The Evidence of Ongoing Violation:
The DPC already possesses comprehensive documentation proving that Google's "permanent delete" function is a deceptive interface. When a user deletes a chat and empties the trash, Google only removes the client-side JSON pointer. The underlying conversational data remains fully intact on Google's servers, and can be instantly reactivated via the restoration of said JSON file. This has been proven via:

1. Technical Proof: The forensic documentation available at: https://discuss.ai.google.dev/t/caught-by-the-anchor-how-restoring-the-json-exposes-googles-backend-fraud/179721 .
2. Official Admission: Google's internal Buganizer response (Issue #552682596), which explicitly classifies the retention of this "deleted" data as "intended behavior."
3. Regulatory Failure: Google's own API documentation contradicts their UI statements, proving a calculated, systemic, and ongoing deception of the user.

Notice of Potential Misconduct:
Despite having all the evidence required to initiate formal proceedings, the DPC has remained passive. This inaction is no longer a matter of administrative delay; it is being documented as an attempt to shield a major corporation from accountability for admitted, systemic, and ongoing violations of European law.

If the DPC continues to fail to act, I will interpret this passivity as willful obstruction of justice and a failure to perform your statutory duties.

Formal Ultimatum:
I formally demand that the DPC initiates a full, formal enforcement investigation against Google LLC within 14 days of receipt of this notice.

Should the DPC fail to fulfill its statutory obligations and initiate such proceedings, I will commence legal action against the Commission for misfeasance in public office, willful neglect of duty, and complicity in the violation of citizens' fundamental data protection rights.

This notice, and the evidence provided, will be submitted to the courts as proof that the DPC was fully informed of the violation and chose to permit it.

I expect a formal confirmation that proceedings have been initiated.

I am writing to demand an immediate response to my communications by the end of the business day today.

For months, I have been providing you with irrefutable evidence of systematic GDPR violations by Google LLC. All of my previous communications, evidence packages, and correspondence remain in your possession, and I have maintained a complete log of our entire communication history.

The totality of the forensic evidence, including the technical breakdown, official documentation, and admissions from Google's own internal systems, is contained in this report:

https://discuss.ai.google.dev/t/caught-by-the-anchor-how-restoring-the-json-exposes-googles-backend-fraud/179721

Do not attempt to deny the receipt of my evidence or the timeline of our correspondence. I have all emails documented, and if necessary, I will utilize Google Takeout to export and submit our entire communication history to the court as proof of your prolonged failure to act on a documented, ongoing violation of European law.

Your continued silence and refusal to enforce the GDPR is a dereliction of your statutory duty. I have provided you with everything you need to act.

I demand a formal response by the end of the day today.

Failure to respond today will confirm that the DPC is intentionally obstructing justice and shielding Google from accountability. I am fully prepared to proceed with legal action against the Commission for this misconduct.

This is my final notice.
